'Brett' and Coincidence

She called up and said, "Who is Brett?" "Brett?" I asked, stalling for time. "Brett who?" "Just Brett." "From where?" "New York." It was in a letter. There were two photos of young ladies in shorts and shirts and written in green ink across each picture it said, "We think we look our best in these." It was signed "Brett."

"Brett, eh?" "Yes, Brett."

"The only Brett I know was Lady Brett Ashley in 'The Sun Also Rises,' and if you haven't read the profile on Hemingway in the New Yorker you should."

"Does she now live in New York?"

"No, she died of tuberculosis in Mexico a long time ago."

"This one is alive."

"You say there are pictures of two young ladies in shorts and shirts?"

"Yes."

"And in green ink it says 'We think we look our best in these'?"

"Yes."

"A light dawns," I said. "It is Brett's Shop in New York. That's where I got you that hat. Brett runs it and she had never even read 'The Sun Also Rises.' I remember asking her. That was a year ago. I don't get to New York too often."

So, that was how I got involved with Hemingway and Brett.

Coincidence

It is odd how coincidences occur. On one and the same day my mail included some ads from Brett's Shop in New York; Frank Sinatra, who no doubt deserves it, flew to Madrid to woo a movie actress who wouldn't see him except briefly because she was interested in a bullfighter, and the New Yorker carried a remarkable "profile" on Ernest Hemingway who wrote, among other things, "The Sun Also Rises." In this book the heroine is a distressed young lady named Brett who goes off with a bullfighter to Spain. Sinatra, who was never one of my favorite characters, isn't yet divorced. Brett wasn't either.

Into the Trees

Hemingway has written a new novel. It has been appearing in Cosmopolitan, although since subjected to considerable rewriting. It is called "Across the River and Into the Trees." In it Hemingway discusses the high command level of the American Army in a manner which is pretty sure to occupy conversations across the country as soon as it becomes the fashionable thing to do to read the novel. This is sure to happen.

The New Yorker profile is a wonderfully fine job of "reporting" writing. The best novelist of our time is rather heavily laden with champagne through most of it, since he is relaxing after finishing the book. But it only proves the Biblical fact that man is wonderfully and fearfully made—especially Ernest Hemingway.

Brett's Burial

I had one other coincidence with Brett and Hemingway. In 1943 I was in Great Britain. There was a small dinner club of 10 members which held a dinner each month to which was invited as honor guest a notable of the arts or letters. I was invited to a dinner at which Lord Wavell, hero of the North African deserts, and but lately named Viceroy to India, was the honor guest and speaker.

After it was over we adjourned to a London club where I continued a conversation with a gentleman who had been at my right during dinner. We fell to talking about books and he deplored the lack of wartime publishing in Britain. We both revealed an enthusiasm for Hemingway and I said that of all the characters by Hemingway I thought Lady Brett Ashley the most pathetic and tragic in the Greek drama meaning of tragedy.

"She was a real person, you know," said the gentleman. "She married my brother."

I was startled, but he went on. "She died of tuberculosis in Mexico," he said, "and the final chapter was one that might have been in the book. At the funeral the villagers were carrying her casket from her house down a rocky path to the graveyard in the valley. You know how they carry caskets—on their shoulders. One of the front chaps stumbled and fell, and the casket was thrown to the earth, spilling poor Brett's ravaged, thin body out on the hillside. It gave them quite a turn, really, but I will always feel it was Brett's last act, a sort of last gesture in keeping with her life."

In 1945 the present Mrs. Hemingway was Mary Welsh, one of the two best reporters in London's Fleet Street, and was one of my favorite persons. In 1943 she was one of "Life's" notables in London.

Brett's Shop started all this reminiscing. It was fun for me.

Speakers On Armed Forces Day See Benefits and Peril in Atom

By AUSTIN STEVENS

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON—President Truman asserted last night that the development of atomic energy, although born in destruction, would ultimately prove a strong force for world peace. The President and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces declared on the eve of the nation's first observance of Armed Forces Day that the discovery of atomic fission in World War II had achieved its purpose in shortening a war and saving a half million lives.

Even though, he said, the world now lives in an atmosphere where "some people only understand a fist," he expressed the solemn hope that the time is approaching for a better settlement of problems.

Mr. Truman addressed a dinner gathering celebrating the first observance of a combined armed forces day, an event replacing the separate commemorations that preceded unification of the services.

The nationwide observance opened with sober reminders from military leaders, speaking elsewhere, on the Soviet's mounting military and industrial strength and with assurances from defense officials here that plans for the security of the United States are realistic and capable of meeting any challenge.

President Truman and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, speaking to the same gathering here, made strong appeals for extension of the selective service law, due to expire June 30. With the reminder that he had twice a year since 1945 asked for a universal training program, Mr. Truman declared that had there been such a program in being there "would have been no cold war."

The schedule of Atlanta events marking Armed Forces Day will be found on Page 4.

Speaking briefly and extemporaneously after a formal address by Secretary Johnson on progress in unification, Mr. Truman said that historically with the improvement of weapons war casualties have decreased.

In the Second World War, Mr. Truman asserted, President Roosevelt was "willing to gamble" that the atom bomb could be used as an explosive. After an "immense" expenditure, Mr. Truman said, atomic fission was used for destruction, "to end a war." It saved, he said, a half million lives and thus achieved its purpose.

Discovery of the uses of atomic energy, the Chief Executive then added, "will do more for the peace of the world than for its destruction."

The United States, Mr. Truman stated, is developing its armed forces for maintaining peace. He closed his brief remarks with an expression of hope that all individuals in the world might some day live under a bill of rights modeled on the first ten amendments of the Constitution of the United States.

Earlier in Washington, Stuart Symington, Chairman of the National Security Resources Board, stressed that America must be ready for war at any time with out warning or formal declaration. He addressed the luncheon of the Committee for Economic Development.

Symington, until recently Secretary of the Air Force, said afterwards he was not making a point of the nearness of war but of the importance of being strong in order to prevent war. He also cited a few of the conditions civilians should expect if war came: for the businessman, no abnormal profits; for the worker, work where he is told.

Speaking elsewhere, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, sounded warnings about the state of our defenses and the Russians' development of atomic weapons.

Gen. Bradley in an address delivered in San Francisco asserted that "in a few years we and our friends may have to face the reality of Russian atomic strength. Although they may not have the same number of atomic bombs as we will have in our stockpile, they will probably have enough to deliver a devastating blow at any area they propose to strike."

In a similar vein, Gen. Vandenberg, speaking in Detroit, announced that the Russians are building planes which can carry atomic bombs to targets in this country "in considerable numbers."

Declaring that the present air force couldn't last in an all-out air war more than a few months, Gen. Vandenberg also said that the aircraft industry could not now replace heavy combat losses and that it would take "at least two years" to get the industry into full war production.

Gen. Bradley spoke of the need for legislation that would give the President emergency mobilization powers.

20 Killed, 400 Hurt In Docks Explosion

Four TNT-Laden Barges Blow Up In N. J. Harbor; 40-Mile Area Rocked

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK—At least 20 persons were killed and more than 400 injured last night when four barges loaded with various types of ammunition exploded at South Amboy, N. J.

The blast, which broke windows and shook houses over a 40-mile radius, left the City of South Amboy prostrate. Scores of residential homes were damaged and the business section, including two banks, was a shambles.

Gov. Alfred A. Driscoll, of New Jersey, declared martial law shortly before 11 o'clock, and 500 troops from Fort Monmouth, in battle dress and fixed bayonets, moved in to restore order and prevent looting.

Most of the casualties were the result of broken glass, for virtually every windowpane in the city of 10,000 persons was shattered.

The explosion, which could be heard in Trenton, 36 miles southwest, and parts of South Brooklyn, and Staten Island, 32 miles north, occurred as 600 tons of the ammunition, which included gunpowder and fuse caps, was being loaded on the barges from a dozen or more Pennsylvania Railroad freight cars.

The barges, anchored in Raritan Bay, went up with a terrific roar. The force of the blast wrecked the nearby New Jersey Central Power and Light Company plant, a five-story building. The building's destruction resulted in the failure of electric power throughout the city.

A spokesman for the railroad said the ammunition transfer was being conducted by an independent lighterage company and that no railroad employees were involved. The explosives, according to the spokesman, were delivered to the pier about noon for export under a special permit granted by the Coast Guard.

Police Chief David Quinlan said the explosives were to be shipped today to Brooklyn for transshipment to South America.

Mayor John Leonard of South Amboy estimated that 3,000 out of the city's 4,000 homes were damaged.

The Postmaster, Thomas Downs, ran to the Post Office Building.

Rains To Add To City Woes

Wet feet will add to the woes of Atlanta's "trolleyless" population today and tomorrow. The weatherman predicts there will be more of yesterday's thunder-showers on both days.

Otherwise the weather will be considerably cloudy and warm. The mercury today is expected to rise to 84 degrees after a dip to 61, yesterday's exact readings. The thermometer tomorrow will range from a low of 64 to a high of 88.

A flash flood yesterday inundated a portion of Roswell Road in the Nancy Creek area.

FEPC Bill Is Blocked In Senate

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Southern Senators won their fight yesterday to block consideration of the hotly-disputed Fair Employment Practice (FEPC) bill.

Although the backers of this key measure in President Truman's "civil rights" program promised to try again, there was hardly a shred of doubt that the measure was dead for the session.

A motion to apply the debate limiting closure rule failed. It would have taken the votes of 64 members—two-thirds of the full Senate—to invoke it. Only 52 Senators voted for the so-called gag rule—12 short of the required number. Thirty-two Senators opposed it.

Sen. Lehman, Democrat-Liberal, New York, an ardent advocate of FEPC, called the result one of the most discouraging occurrences in his experience in public affairs.

The closure move was not aimed at curbing debate on the bill itself, which never has formally been before the Senate. It was designed to shut off further talk on a motion by Democratic Leader Lucas, Illinois, to bring the measure up for consideration. Two weeks ago Lucas moved to call up the bill and Southern opponents announced their intention of trying to talk it to death.

They were jubilant over the success of their strategy.

Sen. Russell, Democrat, Georgia, who served as floor leader for the Southerners and others opposed to FEPC and closure, said May 19 should be "a day of rejoicing" for persons who sincerely believe in the right of petition and individual freedom and human liberty.

Republicans were quick to point out that a far larger proportion of their number voted for closing off the debate than among the Democrats.

The Republicans' score: For closure, 33; against, 6.

Democrats: For, 19; against, 26.

SOUTH AMBOY LITTERED

All Glass in Town Cracked by Blast

James Birby arrived at the scene of the South Amboy explosion before police set up barricades. Following is his eyewitness story.

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J.—(UP)—Two barges were burning fiercely when I arrived last night in South Amboy.

Not a piece of solid glass remained in town. Store fronts were bashed in. Glass filled the streets. It was almost as bad in Perth Amboy across the river and in other towns that I came through on the way here from my home in Metuchen.

Metuchen is 12 miles from South Amboy, and we felt the blast at our house. I jumped in my car and followed the fire engines and ambulances to the vicinity of the docks where the explosion occurred.

The streets were clogged with ambulances and fire trucks. Within a few minutes I counted 56 ambulances and 42 fire engines.

By the time I got there they were evacuating everyone they could from South Amboy because they feared two more barges would blow up. Most of the injured apparently had been hit by flying glass.

As I walked through the streets the broken glass crunched under my shoes. For an area of about six blocks around the docks the streets were littered with shell fuses.

An hour or more after the blast the fire engines and ambulances were still pouring into the town. Police were assembling them at the outskirts in case two more barges blew up.

Shortly after I got into South Amboy, police threw up barricades around the area to keep the crowds back. There were no telephones working in South Amboy or in the immediate area, so I had to drive the 12 miles to my home to call the United Press.

Driscoll said State police from the northern and southern sections of the State have been ordered to the scene of the explosion.

The State's defense and health departments also were maintaining close contact with the situation and were prepared to extend necessary aid, he said.

Headless Body Seen; Carnage Is Reported

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J.—(AP)—"I saw a body with its head blown off and parts of bodies scattered in the debris."

This eye-witness description of the blast-rocked dock area of this stunned city of 10,000 persons came from Steve Dobrynski, of Keyport, a coal barge skipper who had left the scene only moments before the fatal blow.

One of the first persons to reach the scene, Dobrynski said he had to duck a shower of mud, parts of buildings and litter of all kinds to get to the scene. He saw the

STRIKING TROLLEYMEN REPORT BRIEFLY FOR PAY CHECKS

Months-Long Trolley Tieup Forecast by Union Official

By MARJORY SMITH

Atlanta's transit strike goes into its third day this morning with the grim prediction by labor spokesmen that the walkout may "last for months instead of weeks."

Striking Georgia Power Company trolley operators, "need no financial support and are prepared to hold out from now on," Jesse M. Walton, President of the local operators' union, told an Atlanta Constitution reporter as he began a conference with Mayor Hartsfield.

Hartsfield today will continue attempts toward settlement of the strike by separate conferences with representatives of the trolley operators' union and power company officials.

He is scheduled to meet with Georgia Power Company President C. B. McManus and Harlee Branch at 9 o'clock this morning.

The Georgia Federation of Labor yesterday unanimously voted support of the AFL Transit Operators' walkout, as the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce termed it "a blight on the economic picture of Atlanta."

Members of the Atlanta Christian Council, representing Protestant Churches of Greater Atlanta, last night offered its services to both Company and Union and called on the City to make tomorrow a day of prayer for peaceful settlement of the strike.

The general public continued to make the best of the trolley-less situation. Atlanta's 300,000 daily trolley riders are traveling by thumb, car pool, taxi, and courtesy car.

Police reported traffic tie-ups "not nearly as bad as last year's." Consensus of a cross-section of Atlanta merchants was that business receipts were down "a few percent" yesterday. Yesterday's volume was the same as during the first day of the strike last year, merchants reported.

John M. Elliott, of Detroit and Denver, AFL Transit Union International Vice President, declared in Columbus he "believed this strike is going to last not just for weeks, but for months."

Elliott and Walton presented their case to the Georgia Federation of Labor in Columbus a few hours before meeting with Hartsfield and J. S. Prickard, local union Secretary-Treasurer, in a closed session here.

Elliott flew back to his Detroit headquarters following the meeting with Hartsfield. He declared there was "no point in his staying during this stalemate," but said he would return to Atlanta if he were needed.

Delegates to the Federation convention, in a roaring voice vote, pledged "whole-hearted support" and promised financial aid if needed to striking Atlanta trolley men.

Richard H. Rich, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce President, issued a statement terming the "annual walkouts a blot on Atlanta, which otherwise is the fastest growing city, economically, in the nation."

Richard Florid, of the Atlanta Restaurant Association, estimated restaurants here are taking losses up to 75 per cent in night business. He added if the strike lasted two weeks Atlanta restaurants would lose $500,000.

Power company officials estimated losses in company fares for each strike day at $25,000 and loss of operators' wages each day at $11,000, with total losses to date because of the strike, $72,000.

Company spokesmen recalled last year's 19-day strike was the longest and most costly in history of the Atlanta transit system.

The Rev. John R. Brockhoff, President of the Atlanta Christian Council, last night made public statements sent to both company and union spokesmen, offering aid of ministers.

Both union and Company agreed to consultations with Hartsfield. C. B. McManus, Company President, declared, "Our ability to pay operators' demands lessens as the strike continues."

Strike Outlawed, Police Snarl Traffic

PARIS—(UP)—Police deliberately created a huge traffic jam yesterday in a campaign for higher pay.

Forbidden by law to strike, the police were on the job as usual at intersections. But they made no attempt to regulate traffic.

Girl Tries Holdup, Teller Grabs Hands

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—A 26-year-old woman sidled up to the window at a Bank of America branch here yesterday and whispered:

"I need $500, lay it out for me."

Teller Rembert Coney grabbed her wrist and called bank guards.

Police identified her as Miss Catherine Magruder, of San Francisco. She was unarmed.

She told police she "just knew" her abortive hold-up attempt would succeed. She added that she lost her job "as a soda jerk because I didn't smile at one of the customers."

Police booked her on suspicion of attempted robbery.

Bell Seeks Rate Hike, Dumas Says

Southern Bell Telephone Company will seek immediately a rate increase throughout its territory, Pres. Hal Dumas said yesterday.

A misinterpretation of the Company's policy developed when the company spokesmen previously denied a union charge that recent wage increases granted the union would be used as a lever to force a rate increase.

The Company maintained that regardless of the recent increases granted the union, Southern Bell would have been forced to ask for rate increases.

"As to the Company's plans to petition for rate increases," Dumas said, "Southern Bell's only source of revenue is the rates which it charges for service."

"The Company's earnings are already low and there is no margin out of which increases in wages can be paid. If the Company is to remain sound financially, any increases incurred in the costs for rendering service must be recovered through increases in telephone rates. There is no other way increases in costs can be met."

"Wage increases granted in the last 10 years have already cost the Company about $24,000,000 more than the rate increases which have been authorized during the same period. This margin will be further widened by the recent settlement and with earnings already too low, it becomes imperative that we seek rate increases."

Dumas said the increase in the recent wage costs make it "necessary for the company to seek immediately rate increases over and above those already needed."

Meanwhile, Walter McDonald, Georgia Public Service Commissioner and general solicitor of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, said the nationwide Bell system may seek what he termed unjustified rate increases as a result of wage hikes.

"The Bell system is in a healthy financial condition and is making a fair return throughout the country," McDonald said. "Some companies may be entitled to a slight rate increase but there is no giving them more than they need."

In a memorandum sent to each state commission, the NARUC cited substantial increases in earnings for the first three months of 1950 by various units of the Bell System.

McDonald pointed to the last rate increase for Southern Bell in Georgia, in March of last year. He said the utility won a $2,322,724 rate increase on the basis of a $1,100,000 wage increase. In Georgia, McDonald had opposed the increase.

The Bulletin from the NARUC showed an increase for the first three months of 1950 on earnings per share of stock of the consolidated Bell system from $7.71 in 1949 to $11.33. Southern Bell in the bulletin said for this period from $5.86 to $6.36, McDonald said.

Fliers Freed by Red China Get Rousing U. S. Welcome

LONG BEACH, Cal.—(AP)—Two U. S. fliers, who thought they were "forgotten men" during 18 months' imprisonment by Chinese Communists, received a rousing welcome upon returning to their homeland yesterday.

Marine Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, 27, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Navy Chief Electrician's Mate William C. Smith, 32, Long Beach, looked trim and fit as they stepped down the ramp of a Marine transport plane which brought them from Pearl Harbor to near-by Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

Mrs. Ruby Smith, 32, rushed up the ramp with their two young sons to embrace her husband, whom she hadn't seen for 22 months. As Smith hugged Michael, three, his wife introduced him to Patrick, 17 months, who was born while he was a prisoner.

Bender was to be flown soon afterward to Glenview, Ill., a Chicago suburb, for a reunion with his wife, Shirley, and daughter, Kathy, four. He was met here by Mrs. Anna Kaiser, Los Angeles, a cousin of his mother.

In a news conference here the men indicated, as they had to newsmen at Pearl Harbor, that they admitted to a Red spy charge in order to obtain their release.

Asked if they gave "spy confessions," Bender replied, "We signed statements but they were not what you would call confessions." He added it would take "half a day" to explain the situation.

With Bender at the controls, they took off from Tsingtao, then Nationalist territory, Oct. 19, 1948. Bender said engine failure forced their small observation-type plane down in Communist territory and they were captured.

Both men said the Communists had tried to indoctrinate them and that it appeared their release was contingent upon U. S. recognition of the Chinese Communist regime.

"They seemed to think we'd like to stay," Smith added ironically.

Morse Leads In Oregon GOP Primary

PORTLAND, Ore.—(UP)—Early returns from Oregon's primary election last night gave Sen. Wayne Morse, Liberal Republican, a lead over his Conservative opponent, Dave Hoover, in the contest for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator.

State Senator Austin Flegel, an ardent Fair Dealer, moved in from his two opponents for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Complete returns from seven of the State's 2,017 precincts gave: U. S. Senator: Republican—Hoover 200, John McBride 17, Morse 453, Democratic—Howard Latourette 35, Louis Wood 52.

Governor: Democratic—Flegel 108, Walter Pearson 86, Lew Wallace 59. Gov. Douglas McKay, with no opposition, was automatically nominated on the Republican ticket.

Nothing CAN TAKE THE PLACE of The CHURCH in YOUR LIFE

If in these troubled times, the values of life seem somewhat mixed-up... your thinking confused... and the outlook for the future uncertain... then you need to find yourself through faith by turning to religion. The church provides the pillar of strength you need to build a new life. Each day thousands of individuals just like you are finding new happiness, hope and courage by turning to the church and reaffirming their faith. Families so re-united are being brought closer together... strong against the world... happier, more tolerant among themselves. Through faith men, women and young people are learning the true sense of values... gaining a new sense of understanding... and obtaining the inner security that brings success in work as well as in life. If you want to find yourself through faith, then come to church Sunday.

ATHENS—Nine students have been named cheerleaders at the University of Georgia.

New men cheerleaders are Jack Jackson, Atlanta; Steve Mitakis, Linden, N. J.; Bob Hirschberg, Sumter, S. C., and Aubrey Wheelchel, Covington.

Women cheerleaders are Jean Butts, Athens; Patsy Lanier, Leesburg, Fla.; Jackie Garton, Avondale Estates; Jo Lane Cheves, Atlanta, and Lynne Lee, Thomson.

100 Jailed In Bolivia Strike Riot

LA PAZ, Bolivia—(AP)—New violence flared in strike-crippled La Paz yesterday and police arrested approximately 100 persons in an attempt to maintain order.

There were no new casualties. One person was killed and eight injured in clashes Thursday night. Yesterday strikers besieged a university building exchanged shots with soldiers and police. The government declared 200 "Communists and sympathizers" were in the building and said they would be "starved out."

In the northern zone of the city anti-government groups threw up barricades of paving stones and fought with police and soldiers. The disorders followed a general strike called by the Confederation of Labor Thursday to underscore demands for higher pay which workers say is necessary due to rising living costs.

Veto of Excise Relief Threatens in Miner Aid

By JOHN D. MORRIS

SPECIAL TO THE NEW YORK TIMES AND THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
WASHINGTON—New doubts arose over the prospect of excise tax relief this year. The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday provided additional ammunition for a possible veto and a key senator warned that time was growing short for completion of congressional action before adjournment.

The House group, which is framing a tax-adjustment bill tentatively approved further extension of special tax benefits to mining operators in spite of the Administration's recommendations for drastic curtailment.

Sen. George, Democrat, Georgia, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Congress would have to remain in session until the end of August to complete action on a tax bill.

"Every new feature added to the tax bill in the House," he added, "will diminish chances for favorable Senate consideration. The Senate Finance Committee now must hold lengthy hearings on steps already taken by the Ways and Means Committee, and that will mean delay."

The House committee's action was in continuation of voting that began Thursday on proposed changes in the tax allowances available to producers of oil, gas and a number of other minerals as compensation for depletion of their resources. The operators are permitted to deduct specified percentages of their gross incomes in paying Federal income taxes.

Russian Ships Sail Channel

SPECIAL TO THE N. Y. TIMES AND THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
LONDON—The unheralded appearance of nearly 20 Russian ships in the English Channel where Western Union naval forces are gathering for exercises, caused puzzled comment here yesterday.

Unofficial reports indicated that at least 19 Soviet craft had passed westward through the Strait of Dover close to the three-mile territorial limit. Maritime sources suggested that others might have passed on the French side of the channel.

The British Admiralty said there had been no official contact with the Russian vessels. Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fraser when questioned expressed the opinion that this was an ordinary passage by travelers to the Black Sea. Such transits from the Baltic around Western Europe are not unusual.

KEEPING UP WITH ATLANTA

By ALEX JOINER

U. S. Atty. Ellis Mundy is elated today over Federal prosecutors' "total victory" in a widely operating six-man counterfeit ring including Atlanta's "Buddy" Holtzendorf. Conviction of Claude Shelds, of Spartanburg, S. C., and Gordon Lee Talley, of Calhoun, in Rome yesterday made it "100 percent." Mundy reported. Holtzendorf and Tasker Brown, of Calhoun, and Julius Howard Rogers and W. W. Payne, of Houston, Texas, had previously entered "guilty" pleas.

Sues for Rent Damages

In Atlanta the U. S. Government has filed two separate suits on behalf of an Atlanta tenant Joseph N. Seder, of 504 Fourteenth St. N. E., seeking a total of $1,370.25 treble damages for alleged rent overcharges. One suit, asking $488.25, is against Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Byrd, of Mount Paran Rd. N. W. The other seeks $882 treble damages from Thomas G. Johnson, Jr., and Mrs. Jacqueline S. Johnson, both of Knoxville, Tenn. According to the Government the defendants at various periods were landlords owning the Fourteenth Street unit rented by Seder and ignored on order of the Office of the Housing Expediter reducing maximum rent from $75 to $31.50 monthly.

Douglas MacArthur for "distinguished civilian service with General Headquarters, Far East Command, during the period 5 May 1947 to 21 April 1950." The 1950 "Blue Print" at Tech has been dedicated to Fred Wesley Ajax, associate dean of students, according to Henry F. McCamish, student editor of the annual. Tech senior John G. Carver, from Nashville, Tenn., has been awarded a graduate scholarship by the General Education Board. Carver will continue his studies in physics at Yale University in the Fall of 1950.

City Sanitary Code

Atlanta policemen are distributing copies of the City Code of Atlanta which provides for neatness and cleanliness of sidewalks and streets in front of business property as a contribution to the current Clean-Up campaign. Ira B. Melton, senior vice commander of Harby Post No. 58, of the American Legion, was recently elevated to commander by a unanimous vote. The Post elected Hoyt W. Sutton, senior vice commander; Dennis A. Walter, junior vice commander; and Jack B. Coward, finance officer.

CITY HALL NEWS

Pest Control Office Barely Misses Eviction

The city's rodent and insect control offices were almost left out in the "cold." The Administration had planned to abandon the old red brick building which houses these activities of the City Health Department when the new $500,000 City Health Building is completed. Mayor Hartsfield and others thought arrangements to house the activities in other quarters had been made, but Stafford W. Graydon, City Health Engineer, says no plans were ever made to locate the divisions in the new structure. He said if the old structure is abandoned, new quarters must be provided.

The Mayor and others had started surveys to raze the old brick structure located near the southeast intersection of Mitchell Street and Central Avenue. Plans called for beautification of the plot, conversion into badly needed additional parking space for use of the City Hall.

Mrs. Hartsfield Ill

Mrs. William B. Hartsfield, wife of Atlanta's Mayor, has been ordered by Dr. Mason Lovance to St. Joseph's Hospital for observation of an infection of her left eye. The Mayor said her condition is regarded as good.

Child Clinic Opening

The first area-wide Child Guidance Clinic in Atlanta should open by Aug. 1, Joseph Haas, Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Child Guidance for the Community Planning Council, says. Dr. Alfred Agin, of the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic, will direct the new operation which will serve Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb Counties.

West View Hearing Scheduled for June 7

By FRANK MAJORS

Fulton Superior Court Judge Jesse M. Wood has modified an order requiring West View Corporation to restore water spigots and maintain grasses, plants and shrubbery on individual lots in the firm's cemetery.

Judge Wood yesterday set aside his original order of May 9 pending a hearing at 9:30 a. m. June 7 on a suit for declaratory judgment filed by attorneys for Mrs. Robert Alston and others.

The suit seeks to define legally the duties of West View in the upkeep of individual lots in the cemetery. It was filed by Atty. Dudley Cook and Alex McLennan.

Atty. John Westmoreland, Sr., representing West View agreed to file defensive pleadings in the matter before June 1.

Harold W. Brown, a West View spokesman, declared the cemetery corporation already furnishes water and maintains grass at the cemetery and will continue to do so.

Brown stated the corporation welcomes a chance to determine whose duty it is to care for individual plantings of shrubbery upon cemetery lots.

Charter Granted

Prominent National Guard officers from several cities in Georgia have been granted a charter in Fulton Superior Court as the National Guard Association of Georgia, Inc.

The application sets out that the association will seek to promote, among other things, the welfare of enlisted men and officers of the National Guard, and cultivate a better understanding of its purposes.

ONE OF CARS FIGURING IN SPECTACULAR DEKALB WRECK
Vehicle of Donald S. Tydings Is Prepared For Towing to Garage...

Nine Hurt In Wrecks About City

Nine persons were injured, two critically, yesterday in automobile accidents in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area. Among the injured were two four-year-old pedestrians.

Two persons were critically injured last night in a spectacular automobile crash at McAfee and Candler roads, DeKalb County police said.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Clay, 34, of 748 McAfee Pl., was admitted to Emory University Hospital in critical condition with a cerebral concussion, severe lacerations and possible internal injuries. Ptl. H. C. Rowden and P. C. Roberts said.

Mrs. Alice A. Tydings, of 2878 Lookout Pl., wife of Donald S. Tydings, Assistant Supervisor of Enforcement in the Regional Alcohol Tax Unit Office, was admitted to Emory with a broken shoulder and severe cuts about the head and body.

Tydings was not seriously injured in the crash, patrolmen said. Mrs. Clay overran a stop sign at Candler Road, home of Mr. and Mrs. Tydings. They added the Tydings' car careened through a picket fence onto a lawn at 801 Candler Road, home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McMichael and halted in a rose garden.

Charges of overrunning a stop sign and operating while under the influence of intoxicants were lodged against Mrs. Clay, patrolmen related.

Four others were hurt in a crash at North Decatur and Springdale Roads. DeKalb Ptl. D. H. Cloutier and H. F. Striplin said. Dr. W. F. Durden, 27, of 1289 Oxford Rd., N. E., and his wife, Mrs. Louise Durden occupant of one car, were treated at Emory for cuts and bruises. Miss Patricia Ann McGovern, 24, of Avondale Estates, the driver of the other car, and Miss Gloria Smith, passenger, of 1722 Cornell Rd., sustained like injuries.

Two four-year-olds were among three pedestrians injured yesterday, police records showed.

Patricia Conner, Negro, of 100 Bell St. N. E., was admitted to Grady Hospital in serious condition with head injuries. Ptl. G. L. McGraw and W. T. Laseter said the child started across Auburn Avenue at Bell St. and was struck by a car driven by Raymond S. Green, 23, of Covington.

The mother, Lily Harrison, told officers she was calling to Patricia to come back when the auto struck her.

Four-year-old Roy Harper, of 73 Hunter St., S. E., received minor injuries when struck by an auto at Butler and Hunter Streets. Ptl. B. H. Anderson and J. C. Hopkins said. They added he ran from between parked cars into the path of a machine driven by Merton Lewis, 26, of 2326-A Lindmont Circle.

Lawrence Kaufman, 58, of 1160 Boulevard, N. E., was slightly injured by a car on Spring Street near the New Postoffice Building. Sgt. C. R. Fleming and Ptl. R. B. Moore related. They said he bumped into the side of an auto driven by William N. Trentham, 29, of 552 Rankin St., N. E.

State Labor Men Elect Pate, Set Atlanta Meet

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Georgia Federation of Labor re-elected J. B. Pate, of Macon, as President, and chose Atlanta as the 1951 convention city.

The convention went on record in support of the AFL transit operators strike against the Georgia Power Company in Atlanta.

District Vice Presidents, elected unanimously, were: A. G. Kennedy, of Atlanta; W. W. Green, of Albany; W. W. Holley, of Augusta; E. G. Davis, of Brunswick; R. A. Greene, of Columbus; George W. Lewis, of Macon; W. A. Shores, of Police today pondered the possibilities of season crime as thieves turned to things outdoor. Roy L. Thompson, Tech student, reported the loss of an outdoor motor valued at $586. The motor was taken from a lot at 1126 Peachtree St., N. E., where it was on display.

James R. Hudson, of Decatur, parked his auto on Courtland St., N. E. A short time later he found the generator missing.

Hub caps struck thieves' fancy most. Complaints included O. C. O'Neal, of East Point; C. W. Tope, 875 Carter St., S. W.; R. F. Anthony, 2045 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E.; and Emmett H. Rawles, 246 Atlanta Ave., S. E.

A service station at 864 Gordon St., S. W., lost four tires and tubes.

Will Wynn Worried

Will Wynn, 80-year-old Negro, wants the police to help out with his marital difficulties. Wynn told Dets. Pinson Hammond and J. W. Smith that his wife, 76, from whom he is separated, threatened him with a knife. He also said he is unable to sleep in his home at the rear of 219 Rawson St., S. W., because she hurls rocks against the windows at night.

Seek Wounded Man

Detectives today sought a possibly wounded Negro man on charges of attempted rape. Ptl. C. N. Edge said he overheard a woman screaming at Peters and Trenholm Sts. Observing a Negro man running away from the scene, Edge said he gave chase and apprehended him.

While attempting to search the Negro, the patrolman said the suspect struck him, knocking him down, and attempted to run. Edge said the Negro fell when he fired, but jumped up again and escaped.

Suspect Identified

A Negro burglary suspect fatally wounded by an Atlanta patrolman was identified through Fulton County Police records as Ollice Weaver, 35, of 667 Delbridge St., N. W.

Lt. M. M. Coppenger said Weaver's police record, established through fingerprints, showed one arrest by County officers for drunkenness and a second by city officers for idling and loitering.

Weaver was shot by Ptl. J. L. Morrow Wednesday morning on Walker St., S. W. Morrow said he

Shot Fatal To Atlantan

Detectives today are investigating the death of Mrs. Margaret Staples, 46, who was fatally shot while her husband sat in the back yard of her home at 1448 Mozley Pl., S. W.

The husband, O. O. Staples, told Dets. H. E. Burdett and R. E. Little that he overheard a pistol shot, but thought it was across the street.

Mrs. Theresa Sims, of Mountain City, a daughter, had stopped by to drive Mrs. Staples downtown. Detectives said the daughter and Staples went inside and discovered the body. A .32-20 caliber pistol lay nearby.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon. Mrs. Staples was a native of Unadilla and had lived here 22 years.

In addition to her husband and daughter, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. I. B. Irby, of Perry, and a brother, H. D. Pattishall, of Unadilla.

City to Shift Eternal Flame

Atlanta's historical "Eternal Flame" is going to be moved slightly to make way for progress.

The brightly-burning gas street lamp at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall Streets was one of the original 50 gas lamps that inaugurated gas service in Atlanta on Christmas Day in 1855.

On Dec. 14, 1939, the lamp was relighted as an "Eternal Flame of the Confederacy" to officially inaugurate Atlanta's "Gone With the Wind" festivities. The lamp has burned continuously since then on the same spot where it was first lighted in 1855.

Monday morning, however, the lamp will be moved, for the city is widening the sidewalks along Alabama Street, and the lamp would be "smack in the middle" of the sidewalk as it now stands. Crewmen of the Atlanta Gas Light Company will replace the landmark closer to the new curb.

Smith Pledges To Vote for Anti-Mask Bill

Atlanta Atty. Hoke Smith, seeking election as Fulton County Representative to succeed Jesse Walton, advocated better schools and the passage of home rule and anti-mask legislation in his opening campaign address.

Smith, speaking over Radio Station WSB, told citizens it behooved them to select their representatives with care since Fulton County's half million citizens had only three persons to represent them.

He promised to work for a more proportionate representation in State affairs.

Smith stated the people had a right to demand their representative be present when matters come before the General Assembly. He promised to be on the floor and vote favorably when the anti-mask bill comes up again.

He stated he would work untiringly for a statute to insure each community would be allowed to determine its own local matters.

"We must improve education in Georgia at all levels," the candidate declared. "The first step in this direction is the passage of the Minimum Foundation for Education bill."

One-a-Day Mail Delivery To Start Tuesday in SE

"One delivery a day only" residential mail service—slated for the whole of Atlanta by mid-August—will start Tuesday in Southeast Atlanta.

That means, Postmaster Lon Livingston pointed out, that if your street address has an "S. E." after it, your letter-carrier will be around only once during the day, cutting out that second trip he's been making.

Livingston said single daily deliveries will begin in the northeast section "around June 13."

Deliveries in the other two mailing quadrants of the City will be reduced, in accordance with the recent order by the Postmaster General, as soon as schedules can be arranged. Current goal for City-wide one-a-day mail deliveries is early August.

Post Offices in Decatur and other suburban areas have already reduced residential deliveries. Livingston pointed out, however, that Atlanta has the giant task of re-routing 375 carriers.

The Postmaster reminded patrons of the Atlanta Post Office that window services will be reduced beginning Monday, in accordance with the Washington order. In the future, windows at the two main Post Offices will be open only from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Windows at classified stations will open at 8 a. m. and close at 5:30 p. m.

Only one parcel post delivery will be made, beginning Monday.

Paul West Given Silver Tray, Urn

Fulton County School Supt. Paul D. West was given a silver tray and urn by Negro employees of the system yesterday following his presentation of 25-year service pins to five Negro teachers and principals.

West received the gift during an informal program at the College Park Negro school. It was the second of a series of presentations of pins to Negro school principals, Sallie Wilder.

The presentation of the pins was made following a solo rendition of the "Lord's Prayer" by New Hope Negro school principal, Sallie Wilder.

Receiving the ruby-set gold pins were: Claude Reynolds, Carrie Heard, Sarah McCarter, Lottie Latimer, and Susie Davis, Negro school supervisor Maggie Perry.

In his own behalf, Fields told the court he paid $72 annually for a city license and that he instructs each subject that tattooing or re-mov-ing is done at the customer's own risk. A large sign inside the office bears that wording, Fields declared.

Mechanical Brain Not Too Bright

NEW YORK—(AP)—They put one of those mechanical brains on display at Columbia University and what a dummy it turned out to be!

Couldn't even add two and two.

It's the world's smallest mechanical brain.

Edmund C. Berkeley, who invented it, doesn't ask it to do much—just uses it as an example of what the bigger—and brighter—mechanical brains can do. Tell it to add one and two and it grunts, wheezes and finally gives the right answer—three.

But tell it to tackle two and two and a bright red light goes on—that means the brain is stumped.

Presbyterians Indorse Merger

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Commissioners of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. yesterday approved the movement toward merger of the evangelical Protestant churches in the United States.

The commissioners also indorsed setting up of a permanent commission to appoint delegates to confer on the matter.

But the 162d general assembly, although voting to co-operate in completing the plan of union, will not act in abeyance for five years.

Union Asks Top Court Review Loyalty Ruling

By LOUIS STARK

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON—The United States Steel Workers of America, CIO, yesterday asked the Supreme Court for a rehearing of its decision of May 8 upholding the Taft-Hartley Act requirement that union officers shall file non-Communist affidavits.

The petition signed by Arthur J. Goldberg and Thomas E. Harris, respectively General Counsel and Assistant General Counsel of the CIO, was based on these grounds:

That the high court's action was by an equally divided court and that Justice Douglas, who was absent when the case was argued, would be available to participate if a rehearing were granted.

The petition pointed out that the court of appeals had upheld the oath requirement in its entirety but that only three of the six Justices of the Supreme Court who voted had upheld all sections of the pledge.

Discussing the three sections of the oath, the petition said that the vote was five to one upholding the right of Congress to require union officials to swear they are not Communist Party members.

The requirement that union officers swear they do not believe in overthrow of the Government by force or illegal or unconstitutional means divided the court three to three. And the requirement that the union officers swear they are not affiliated with the Communist Party was upheld four to two.

The CIO lawyers argued that only Justice Frankfurter had expressed the view that the valid portion of the statute might stand alone while the other justices had taken no stand on this issue.

Thus, it was maintained, union officers should not be required to execute an oath considered to be unconstitutional by half of those who participated in the decision.

Marietta's festivities will close at 4:30 p. m. with the presentation of the medals of the late Sgt. B. G. Harbin and a formal retreat on the Courthouse Square.

Cadets to be honored at the Grant Field exercises include Ewell G. Pope, Earl R. Slider, Jr., Richard W. Statham, James H. Motz, Jr., Virgil E. New, Charles D. Quarles, Jr., Charles L. Ray, Jr., Sidney E. Williams, Tom F. Davenport, Lawrence J. Engel, Charles E. Gearing, James E. Stultz, Myers R. Loveless, Raymond V. Guyton, Roy M. Mundorf, Jr., Richard L. Clement and Neil A. Prayer To Precede Graham's Crusade

From Homes and Churches,
Divine Help To Be Asked

Dr. Paul S. James, Pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle and General Chairman of the Greater Atlanta Evangelistic Crusade, announced yesterday that a series of prayer meetings will be conducted in Atlanta homes preceding the Billy Graham crusade here.

Following announcement of the prayer services, Dr. John R. Richardson, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, said the doors to that church would be opened each Saturday night from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, beginning May 20. Dr. Richardson will preside. Services will be devoted to Scripture and prayer for the crusade.

At the same time, Col. John M. Fain, associate chairman of the Extension Committee announced the chapel of the Christian Business Men's Club, 135 Nassau St., will be opened at 3 p. m. each Saturday for similar prayers throughout the crusade preparations.

Dr. James said more than 1,000 workers would participate in prayer meetings in homes of their immediate community. These home programs will be conducted at 10 a. m. each day. It is anticipated that upwards of 30,000 people will be praying simultaneously in these cottage prayer services.

At Morningside

Dr. John L. Hill, former Book Editor of Southern Baptists and now director of promotion of Ridgecrest and Gloria Assemblies, will address the congregation of Morningside Baptist Church during a series of services next week. Worship will be observed at 8 p. m. each day beginning Monday and continuing through Friday. Dr. John T. Cocuz, former executive secretary of the Baptist Union of Romania and now professor of philosophy, University of Georgia, will speak at 11 a. m., tomorrow.

Texas Evangelist

The Rev. Jack Robinson, of Ft. Worth, Texas, who has participated in Youth Revival services at the Tabernacle during the last six days, will address the congregation of the First Hapeville Baptist Church during a series of special revival services beginning tomorrow and continuing each day, through Friday. Services will be held daily at 8:30 and 8 p. m.

Dr. Boyd to Speak

Dr. P. M. Boyd, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Jacksonville, Fla., will speak during a series of revival programs at the Druid Hills Methodist Church beginning tomorrow and continuing daily through Friday.

Miss Hatch Appointed

Miss Mary Stuart Hatch, of Charlotte, N. C., will become director of Religious Education at the Oakhurst Presbyterian Church, Aug. 15. She is a student of the Presbyterian Assembly's Training School.

Mental Ward Praised by Vets

By LOUIS STARK

WASHINGTON—The United States Steel Workers of America, CIO, yesterday asked the Supreme Court for a rehearing of its decision of May 8 upholding the Taft-Hartley Act requirement that union officers shall file non-Communist affidavits.

The petition signed by Arthur J. Goldberg and Thomas E. Harris, respectively General Counsel and Assistant General Counsel of the CIO, was based on these grounds:

That the high court's action was by an equally divided court and that Justice Douglas, who was absent when the case was argued, would be available to participate if a rehearing were granted.

The petition pointed out that the court of appeals had upheld the oath requirement in its entirety but that only three of the six Justices of the Supreme Court who voted had upheld all sections of the pledge.

Discussing the three sections of the oath, the petition said that the vote was five to one upholding the right of Congress to require union officials to swear they are not Communist Party members.

The requirement that union officers swear they do not believe in overthrow of the Government by force or illegal or unconstitutional means divided the court three to three. And the requirement that the union officers swear they are not affiliated with the Communist Party was upheld four to two.

The CIO lawyers argued that only Justice Frankfurter had expressed the view that the valid portion of the statute might stand alone while the other justices had taken no stand on this issue.

Thus, it was maintained, union officers should not be required to execute an oath considered to be unconstitutional by half of those who participated in the decision.

Marietta's festivities will close at 4:30 p. m. with the presentation of the medals of the late Sgt. B. G. Harbin and a formal retreat on the Courthouse Square.

Nations Outside Pact Get Allies' Assurance

Middle States' Security
Concern of U. S., Britain

By RAYMOND DANIELL

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

LONDON—The United States and Britain joined yesterday in reaffirming their continued "interest" in countries outside the Atlantic Pact whose security is of special concern. Iran, Greece and Turkey were mentioned specifically in statements by Foreign Secretaries Acheson and Ernest Bevin apparently with the intention of assuring Middle Eastern nations that while they had not been mentioned in communiques from the series of diplomatic meetings here they had not been forgotten.

Sec. Acheson issued his statement which was more comprehensive but no more specific than Bevin's as he boarded the S. S. Britannic at Liverpool for his voyage home. Bevin's was issued from the Foreign Office shortly afterward. Although couched in different terms they meant the same thing—that the Western Powers linked in the Atlantic Pact would view gravely any threat to the independence of those countries. Recently the Soviet Union has been putting diplomatic pressure on Iran.

Acheson said in his statement that the recent meetings of foreign secretaries here had provided an "opportunity to re-examine" the situation of countries outside the Atlantic Pact for whose security there is special concern. It was understood, however, that no consideration was given to extending the treaty to include those or other countries as members.

Both Bevin and Acheson noted an improvement in the Middle East situation since the signing of the Atlantic Pact and expressed the view that as members of that organization strengthened their defenses they had contributed to the security of other parts of the world as well. Both foreign secretaries noted with satisfaction the termination of the guerrilla war in Greece, the strengthening of Turkey's defenses and the initiative of Iran in undertaking a development program designed to raise its standard of living.

Both statements expressed gratification that with Marshall Plan help Greece and Turkey had been able to "maintain" economic stability. Acheson used the phrase "maintain and promote."

Austria Cheers End Of Military Control

By JOHN MACCORMAC

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

VIENNA—The content of the note in which the Foreign Ministers of the three Western occupation powers yesterday notified the Austrian Government that they would replace military by civilian high commissioners and lighten the occupation burden was not unexpected here but it was received with pleasure.

Not unexpected also was a fact known here for some days that the Soviet Foreign Ministry had notified the Austrian Minister in Moscow that Russia had no intention of doing any of these things. The Russians are reported to have said that since the Austrians were among the soldiers of Hitler who had done so much damage in Russia it would be impossible for Russia to pay its own occupation costs.

The Austrians were left slightly puzzled by the statement in the note of the Western occupation powers that they were ready to settle all outstanding clauses of the treaty draft provided this brought about agreement over the treaty as a whole. The Austrian foreign office has long believed that the Western representatives should forego their contention that it was useless to discuss the remaining four unagreed treaty articles while Russia hung up the whole matter by declining to negotiate its claim against the Austrian government for repayment of post-liberation supplies. It is not certain whether the West now agrees or not.

Replacement of military by civilian high commissioners will not bring joy to any of the three Western occupation armies. It is reported in fact that the unwilling-

Ex-Nazis Increasing Hold on Jobs

But U. S. Germany
Officials Fear No
Party Resurgence

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Former Nazis are filling about half the jobs of State officials and civil servants in the American Zone of Germany and their number is constantly increasing, a survey showed yesterday.

The survey, taken from official German sources, disclosed that the number of one-time Nazi officials drifting back to public employment has jumped greatly in the past six months.

Most American authorities say this is "unsatisfactory," but insist it does not necessarily mean a resurgence of Nazism.

That is about the view taken by Benjamin J. Bittenwieser, Assistant American High Commissioner in Germany, in a speech yesterday before the Foreign Policy Association in New York. He held that despite the fact that more former Nazis are holding jobs in Germany, Nazism as a political doctrine has "been destroyed, never to rise again."

An American official here who has spent four years observing the Nazis said that he did not believe there is an organized movement to plant former active Nazis in key positions. Rather, he said, it is a question of putting into jobs people considered by the Germans capable of doing the work well. He suggested that the more important question is what type of Nazi is being employed. He said the law permits only re-employment of Germans who are "followers" or "lesser offenders" and who have paid their mild penalties in denazification courts and are now restored to full civil rights. Top-ranking Nazis are barred from state posts.

Red Chinese Take Over U. S. Buildings

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

HONG KONG—Two buildings in Canton, ownership of which is claimed by the United States Department of State, have been taken over by the Chinese Communist Government, a traveler, newly arrived from there, reported yesterday. The United States Government had been advised that such action was imminent.

Both buildings had been purchased with credits acquired in China by the United States through the transfer of war material to the Nationalists. The Communists' action raised the question of the status of other properties in many parts of China acquired after the war in the same manner.

These include the United States Embassy at Nanking, the consulate at Shanghai and scores of other buildings purchased for the equivalent of several million dollars.

Red Youths Pack Berlin

BERLIN—(AP)—The vanguard of 800,000 youths from the surrounding Soviet Zone has arrived in Berlin for next week's Whit Sunday Communist demonstration.

As thousands of blue-shirted FDJ (Free German Youth) members detained they were politely shown the way to the Soviet sector. West Berlin police established an escort system at railway stations and accompanied the Communists to the sector border.

UN Group Airs Rights Of Women

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

LAKE SUCCESS—The commission of the status of women, concluding action to bring a wider field of women's rights under the watchful care of the United Nations, wound up its fourth session yesterday.

Finishing work on all 16 of its agenda items, the 15-nation commission—minus the Soviet Union delegate, who walked out over the China dispute—covered a wide range of subjects, including political rights of women, nationality and property rights of married women, equal pay for equal work and educational programs for women throughout the world.

One of the important resolutions passed at this session was a formal invitation to the Secretary General to continue his annual reports on political rights of women but suggesting that in the future he include also pertinent information on political rights of women in trust territories.

Storms Hold Chiang Hope In Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa—(AP)—If Formosa can survive the next 100 days it will still be the Chinese Nationalist capital a year from now, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's elder son declared yesterday.

"In that period, both the internal and international situations might be changed drastically," said Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, who is head of the Defense Ministry's political section.

He implied the belief that in that time a new world war could start, with the Nationalists aligned on the side of the Western Powers. Young Chiang made his comment in appraising the situation created by Nationalist abandonment of the Chusan Islands, one-time blockade base 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

He contended the withdrawal of 150,000 troops to Formosa would bolster defense of this island and pave the way for an eventual invasion of the Communist mainland.

The Nationalists generally say that if the Reds cannot make an invasion of Formosa by the end of August, typhoon weather in the 100-mile-wide Formosa Strait will force postponement till next year.

Indonesians Reach Accord On Single Rule

JAKARTA, U. S. I.—(AP)—The Federal Government of the United States of Indonesia and the original Republic of Indonesia—the largest state within the USI—agreed yesterday on the formation of an over-all government in the former Dutch East Indies.

The decision to set up a single new government came as reports seeping through central government censorship told of new serious fighting in Makassar, capital of the recalcitrant state of East Indonesia. There USI soldiers clashed with KNIL troops, Indonesian corps of the Dutch Armed Forces.

Under the agreement for a unitary regime, a joint committee representing the USI and the Republic of Indonesia will lay the groundwork for the new government. "In the shortest possible time," a joint communique of both governments said.

Defeat For a Compulsory FEPC

There will be no compulsory FEPC (Fair Employment Practices Commission) law passed at this session of Congress. That was decided yesterday when the Senate refused to invoke cloture, which would have shut off unlimited debate, or a filibuster.

The compulsory FEPC should have been killed.

It was not communistic, as charged. It would not have done all the evil things its more violent opposition asserted it would. But, it was compulsory. You cannot prohibit prejudice by law.

That is why we have earnestly opposed the bill. It would have worsened, for a long time anyhow, the employment discriminations. It would have subjected business, especially small business, to undue discrimination. Business could have been, and would have been, plagued by accusations which would have to be answered in distant cities before the established bureaus. It was a very bad bill, however excellent the intent of it.

Now, we can go ahead with the FEPC bill which the House passed, with Southern support. It provides for investigation, hearings, conciliation and recommendations. It will work well, as a similar bureau did during the war.

The compulsory, jail-sentence FEPC was wrong. It probably was unconstitutional. It certainly was unworkable.

The other sort we need. It will work.

Defense Picture

On Armed Forces Day

Armed Forces Day ought to be, and is, a day of stock-taking regarding the ability of this country and its allies to meet any aggressive move by our only potential enemy, Soviet Russia.

Our unpreparedness is perennial and almost proverbial. Adm. Carney dwelt on it upon his arrival here to participate in Armed Forces Day activities. Bernard Baruch, elder statesman whose ability to analyze situations is legendary, deplored it—and offered remedies—in a speech in New York the other night.

The day for which we must be prepared for anything is put by some experts as early as 1952. Others say 1954 and some place the date in-between. All admit, though, that unless the long-term ambitions of the Soviet Union somehow are changed the time will come when we must be ready to defend ourselves. Only by strength can we obviate disaster—strength sufficient to deter aggression or to defeat it if it should come.

There are some hopeful signs that the indecision that has characterized official Washington's thinking the past two years gradually is being replaced by the ability to face realities. The agreement of North Atlantic Pact members to work toward collective security with a single, unified force rather than attempt to integrate separate national forces into an over-all defense plan is part of the new pattern emerging. Under this situation the United States will be largely responsible for long-range strategic bombing and for keeping the sea lanes open. This means enlargement of the Air Force, particularly the Strategic Bombing Command, as well as a stronger Navy.

Another encouraging development was the recent Air Force announcement that greater emphasis would be laid on tactical air support of ground troops—a phase which so far has received too little recognition.

As urgent as is the problem of building up our armed strength, the over-all picture of the national economy cannot be left out of consideration. Our enemies would prefer to see us fall by economic collapse rather than be forced to fight a doubtful war. Unlike a totalitarian country, we cannot channel all our resources into preparedness. That is why we must make sure of a dollar's worth of defense for every dollar spent.

There yet are many deficiencies. Congress still haggles over a draft law which, at best, is inadequate. There is no ready plan for industrial conversion, civilian defense, for mobilization of all resources which would be necessary in case war should come.

There are signs the defense picture is brightening. But it yet remains a dreary one. We have a long way to go.

Driving Not

An Inherent Right

The State of Georgia's hospital and health program has suffered a blow in the death of John E. Ransom, Director of the Division of Hospital Services for the State Health Department and Administrator for Georgia of Hill-Burton funds.

Mr. Ransom was a veteran hospital administrator who came to Georgia after his official retirement to help the State make the best use of Federal and local funds in setting up community and regional hospitals and health centers.

He died Thursday from injuries in an auto crash last month on the four-lane highway near Marietta.

The driver of the car which hit Mr. Ransom was killed instantly in the accident, in which police said his car crossed the center strip on the four-lane highway to collide with the Ransom vehicle.

Significant is the fact that this driver had in his pocket receipts showing that a few days before he had made bond on driving under the influence charges in Marietta and in Polk County.

How long are we going to let repeaters carry a license and stay at the wheel of a car?

Right now a case has been appealed from the Atlanta traffic court testing whether that court has a right to lift a driver's license. If it does not, then the law ought to give it that power.

Driving an automobile is not an inherent right of mankind. It is a privilege that must be earned. Flagrant abuse of that privilege should mean its immediate forfeiture.

An Example

For Policemen

Fulton County police, who frequently have been charged with reckless driving in the Northside, might take a tip from one of their fellow officers in Chatham County.

So there would be no question about the matter, Chatham Patrolman W. J. Logan booked himself, as well as the other driver, on charges of reckless driving when the car ahead stopped suddenly and he skidded into it on wet pavement.

The case didn't come to light until Officer Logan was haled into court on the charge he himself had made, thereby proving he was interested in impartial justice rather than publicity.

The traffic code should be obeyed by everybody, civilian and official.

The Savannah policeman who wrote himself a ticket has set a good example for other men in blue.

THE PULSE OF THE PRESS

A New Dress

(Z. B. Rogers in Elberton Star)

Monday morning The Atlanta Constitution, the South's first morning newspaper, came out in a full new dress, new in type, form and disposition of reading and advertising matter. But for the headstaff and cuts of the editorial force, it might not have been recognized. A reader facetiously said "The Constitution by putting on a Spring dress must be trying to keep in style and shame milady's new Spring dress." Always a most valuable newspaper, The Constitution in its new dress and adornment is not only satisfying to the eye, but more necessary to its readers than ever before. Jack Tarver told the story when interviewed over WSB, and told it well. An added attraction is placing Ralph McGill on front page and Tarver where Ralph has been so long on editorial page.

Sprightly Youngster

(Hartwell Sun)

The Atlanta Constitution came out bright and early Monday morning in its new make-up, and a more chipper 82-year-old youngster we never saw. The make-up, arrangement, type face and other features make The Constitution very attractive and much more readable. Congratulations!

Caught Up at Last

Yes, Sir, it took Ralph McGill, Editor of The Atlanta Constitution 15 years to catch up with the Tribune. Fifteen years ago we decided that the place for the editor's column was on the front page, first column. Other country editors like Ernest Camp, of the Walton Tribune and Albert Hardy, of the Gainesville News, had decided that before I did, but at least I am glad to see that Ralph has at last caught up with us.

The new arrangement of The Constitution is quite pleasing to its readers. I think McGill is one of the best informed editors of my knowledge and a writer of rare ability whose pleasing and informative manner of writing has no superiors and but few equals. I think that Carlton Collier is another of the top editors. He should have a column on the other side of the front page. He knows more about people and human nature than any writer within my knowledge.

The Constitution is a great paper and I hope and believe that men like these will be able to continue the able and constructive work that they are doing. Long live their tribe.

Who's To Pay the Check?

(Camilla Enterprise)

We believe that the incumbent administration is better prepared from the standpoint of experience, organization, political "know-how" than any of the groups actively seeking the executive head of our State government. But the people want to be taken in on how it will be done. The vital issue of taxation has been ducked for the past two years every time it has come before the public by the present administration.

We believe the people are entitled to know how they will have to pay for the services they are asking. The incumbent administration is in position to do great service for the State of Georgia in promoting a general revision of taxation and establishing some long-needed State services. We believe it would not be hard for them to be returned to service for another four years if they would boldly take a stand on a complete program for Georgia—that is both the services and the taxes.

Most people are a little hesitant to take on a proposition until they have seen the check.

JACK TARVER

Lend as Well as Love Your Enemy?

With the exception of Soviet Russia and its satellites, no country in the world is more antagonistic toward the United States than Argentina.

Moreover, now that Hitler and Mussolini are dead and Franco is mellowing, there is no more ruthless Fascist dictatorship than that which Johnny Peron currently heads in Argentina. Yet the Export-Import Bank has just "lent" $125,000,000 of the U. S. taxpayers' hard-earned money to Argentina's Peronista government.

Is there any reason why the United States isn't increasingly regarded, not as Uncle Sam, but as Uncle Sucker?

Hate for U. S. No one who hasn't been there can conceive of the animosity which the average Argentine holds for the United States. Some of it is inherent in the makeup of the proud and arrogant people who inhabit the potentially great South American country. Some of it stems from the fact that our South American policy traditionally has been in favor of its great rival, Brazil. But much of its fury has been whipped up in recent years by demagogic denunciations of "Yankee Imperialism."

Because most Americans erroneously look upon Argentina as just another banana republic, not enough attention has been paid in this country to the constant attempts at intimidation of U. S. citizens. Not enough significance has been attached to the beating of one American correspondent, the blackmail of another, and the arrest and jailing of a third, a woman.

No one who has not heard the viciously anti-American harangues which the pompous Peron delivers before 200,000 shrieking sycophants in the Plaza de Mayo, or who has not read the rabid denunciation of this country in his wife's shakedown-sheet, DEMOCRACIA, can conceive of the bitterness of the hatred in which the Argentine government holds the United States.

Argentine Axis Argentina was openly sympathetic to the Axis in the last war.

Argentina has given refuge and asylum—and even high places in its government—to Hitler's lieutenants.

And Argentine agents are at work, all over South America, undermining democracy and attempting to set up a Peronista confederation. Governments of the same ilk have already been established in Peru and Venezuela. With known Argentine assistance, the Fascist elements of Bolivia twice have tried to overthrow the government and soon may be successful.

The pattern of Argentine dictatorship, in short, has become increasingly clear both abroad and at home. Only recently further persecution has been visited upon the two once-great Buenos Aires newspapers, LaPrensa and Nacion, about the only friends the United States has left in the fear-ridden country.

And how do we register our reaction? Why, by lending Peron $125,000,000 to continue his program of harassing American citizens, undermining American allies and persecuting American friends.

There's a lot to be said for the business of turning the other cheek. But this is completely ridiculous.

GOP Liberals Hail Duff Win

WASHINGTON—The downfall of the old Grundy machine in the recent Pennsylvania Republican primaries is being hailed by progressive elements of the GOP as a harbinger of better times for the party. Certainly it is that the stunning victory of Gov. James H. Duff may be regarded as a victory for the progressive faction of the party and a jolting setback for the Old Guard conservative leadership which has dominated Pennsylvania Republican affairs for the past quarter of a century and more.

Opposing Gov. Duff, who was a candidate for the GOP senatorial nomination, was the heretofore powerful organization headed by former Sen. Joseph R. Grundy. Grundy and his group have openly operated through the headquarters of the well-heeled Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. It long has been a cardinal principle of this group that what is good for business is best for party policy.

The Issue The Philadelphia Bulletin, a leading Republican paper, stated the issue somewhat concisely in these words: "Whether Pennsylvania Republicanism should stick to the old policies which the country as a whole has outgrown, or accept what is sound in social progress and concentrate on fighting excursions into socialism."

The issue was thus clear-cut and the verdict was decisive. Duff piled up a majority of more than two to one, carrying to victory with him his candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, John S. Fine.

It remains only to be seen now whether the Duff forces can go on to final victory in the November general elections. Presumably they will, as Pennsylvania has long been fated as one of the chief GOP strongholds of the country, with a record of having carried only three times by the Democrats in Presidential elections of the past 50 years or more—each time by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Democrats have put up a strong ticket in Sen. Francis J. Myers, present Majority Whip of the Senate, and Richardson Dilworth, the young Philadelphia City Treasurer who was picked to run for Governor because of his upset victory over the entrenched GOP machine last year. But unless the Grundy group sulks in its tent the Duff slate will probably win. Sen. Myers, now serving his first term, came in on the Roosevelt landslide of 1944.

What Gov. Duff preached in the campaign has been the hue and cry of progressive elements in the party for the past decade. The more liberal-minded leaders have contended that the GOP could never expect to return to power nationally until it divorced itself from the Old Guard principles of staid conservatism which have held sway for so long.

Pennsylvania may therefore set an example which might be followed in other State GOP contests. The State has long exercised a leadership in Republican affairs. If that proves true, we may well expect a different complexion to the next Republican National Convention.

But in any event, the victory of the Duff forces is bound to have an important influence in the selection of the next Republican candidate for President. It means that the powerful Pennsylvania delegation, second largest of any of the States, will throw its support to a liberal candidate.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 300 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Yep, We Asked for It

Editor Constitution: Referring to your self-laudatory initial front page column, with the Alice in Wonderland business, your old type, layout, arrangement, headlines, etc., were more attractive to me and easier to read. With this change The Constitution has lost much of its warmth, friendliness and personality and has taken on the same cold and drab appearance and manner of hundreds of other newspapers, and closely resembles such papers as the Peoria Item.

While "modernizing" why not replace this 30-year-old picture of this fellow Stokes, with its smugness and conceit, with a current photo reflecting more dignity and sincerity of purpose, if any. One or two others, Mr. Bisher's especially, could stand a little less complacency and a little more forcefulness.

Well, you asked us to write you and call 'em like we see 'em. R. D. BROWN.

'Tornado Mad'

Editor Constitution: You had a Bob Hope and Will Rogers rolled into one, but you've done him wrong.

I wonder how many of you Jack Tarver fans feel as I do? More space has cramped his style. He can say more in a few words than many. His nuggets of wit and humor on current events were treasures, his words painted pictures much more effective than the cartoon above.

I want him back where he belongs and hereby voice my protest. Maybe if enough of you feel as I do and say so, we can keep him from being just another columnist. He should be paid more money to say more, when he says less.

I dare you to take a straw vote to see how the wind blows?

I'm tornado mad. BARNESVILLE. MRS. J. E. GUILLEBEAU.

Reason for Pride

Editor Constitution: Congratulations upon your new makeup and generally improved paper. You have reason to be proud of a greatly improved newspaper. And let me say that, while I have not seen all of the newspapers of the nation, I have read papers of Miami, Washington, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and New York, and with the exception of the New York Times, a comparison showed that the two Atlanta papers are more readable than any I have seen. Now, The Constitution should be the peer of any in the land. J. Q. WEST.

WCTU Stand

Editor Constitution: On the editorial page of The Constitution recently there was an editorial, "Dry Laws and Drinking."

In that you quote Mark Waits as saying "The liquor issue, at the present time, is not a problem up this way—people go on making it and selling it, and people go on buying it and drinking it, and everybody's happy 'cept maybe the sheriff and the WCTU."

The WCTU definitely is not happy about it. We know that education is the answer but that education should be given the support of the law and the newspapers. Moderation is not the answer, for the alcoholics' ever increasing numbers come from the ranks of moderation. The only answer is total abstinence by the individual and prohibition by the State. This will come.

through education. We do not claim that prohibition will stop all drinking but may I quote from The Atlanta Constitution November, 1908, after Georgia's dry law went into effect in January of that same year: "There has not been a serious business failure this year, and more money has passed through the clearing house than in any 20 years before, and, in the light of these facts, the saloon is gone from Georgia forever." Again from The Constitution, June, 1912: "Bank clearings in Georgia showed an increase of $40,000,000, and real estate was worth from three to five times as much as before prohibition."

By curtailing the sale and drinking of alcoholic beverages prohibition brought a wave of prosperity to Georgia. It can do it again. There is nothing wrong with a prohibition law but when your officials are members of so-called private clubs whose purpose is to circumvent the law it breeds a contempt for law. The majority of the people of Georgia favor prohibition; it was the minority who legalized liquor in Georgia and this is supposed to be a democratic government ruled by the wishes of the majority. MRS. LUTHER DENT.

Gambling Laws

Editor Constitution: For the Congress to attempt to legislate virtue into a people and not to profit from past experience, so glaringly exemplified by the Eighteenth Amendment, is most discouraging. To say to you and to me, "You shouldn't gamble, you shouldn't take a chance," when life itself is more or less of a gamble and whatever we do under our economic system is a question of judgment, right or wrong—in the last analysis, another gamble.

Congress in its wisdom, in passing laws, should not encourage law breaking, and such a law would encourage law breaking in an ever increasing manner and would weaken our society and respect for law. Uncle Sam certainly has a big enough job at this time to look after the "cold war" and to leave individual citizens in this field alone. In other words, let Uncle Sam "attend to his knitting."

It is to be hoped that the spirit of adventure, the spirit of go ahead, the spirit of research, the spirit of taking a chance or, if you please, of taking a gamble, will not be discouraged for when we do this the nation as a whole will go backward. ARMAND MAY.

Bisher on Bill Munday

Editor Constitution: This is my first letter to the editor, but I do want you to know how much I enjoyed Furman Bisher's article on Bill Munday. Bill was, without a doubt, one of the most versatile sports announcers in the country and one of the most popular. His many friends will welcome back on the radio the famous, familiar Southern drawl, and I, for one, hope it will be soon. SAM WORLEY.

Too Late—Or Too Early?

Editor Constitution: I do not agree with Jack Tarver's column, "The 'New Thompson' Came Too Late." Instead of Mr. Thompson's coming too late, don't you think the opposition set the election date too early for Mr. Thompson or anyone else?

Tarver contends that Mr. Thompson has not put up a good fight and he is right. Mr. Thompson or no one else could put up a good fight with the election date set so early. Georgia Tech. LEROY LEWIS.

JOHN MARVIN RAST

Buried hostility is always dangerous, especially so in the home.

This is the viewpoint advanced by Mrs. Helen W. Pomer in "Child Study," the quarterly of the Child Study Association of America.

She is not advertising "a regimen of unbridled outbursts on the part of parents," but a facing of the reality that the home is not always up to the standard of the idealized family of books and advertisements, that there is jockeying for position, teasing, and quarreling on the part of the children and frayed nerves on the part of the parents.

Better an open and frank facing of failures and hostilities, with a "housework" for letting off steam—that growth may not be inwardly bitter but outwardly broad in understanding, appreciation, love.

"Little children, let us not love in word or speech, but in deed and in truth."—(1 John 3:18.)

Is It True an Elephant Never Forgets?

Thompson Takes Stump In Bartow

By M. L. ST. JOHN
Constitution Political Editor

CARTERSVILLE—Former Acting Gov. M. E. Thompson spoke four times in Bartow County yesterday, seeking this county's four unit votes which he lost by only 32 popular votes in 1948.

Citizens of three little rural communities said this was the first time they recalled a candidate for Governor bothering to come to their town asking votes.

Thompson's friends immediately claimed Bartow County will go for Thompson this year, stating his type of campaigning is effective and Talmadge has lost many friends by broken promises of jobs and roads in this county.

Some Talmadge supporters declared, however, that Talmadge will carry Bartow by a large vote this time, pointing to plans for a four-lane highway and State Park development at Allatoona and a State Band Wagon move for Talmadge.

Dr. H. P. McElreath, former representative, introducing Thompson, lauded the former acting governor's record and courageous platform. Thompson's friends estimated the crowd at 400; Talmadge's supporters estimated it at 200.

Emphasizing his appeal to rural voters, Thompson told the people here last night that he is just as anxious to carry the pine log precinct of Bartow County as he is the City of Cartersville.

Mayor W. A. Jarrett told a crowd of some 300 persons at Adairsville that this was the first time a gubernatorial candidate had come calling on that town.

Townpeople at tiny Cassville didn't recall gubernatorial candidates including them on a campaign tour before. Former Mayor C. E. Pratt told about 200 at Kingsland that no other gubernatorial candidate in his memory had campaigned in Kingsland.

More than half the crowd at Kingsland were women, marking a record percentage of women voters turning out for a political meeting this season. They enthusiastically applauded Thompson's pledge to finance the Minimum Foundation Program for Education Jan. 1, 1950.

Thompson's pledge to revise taxes and finance expanded services with a sales tax was applauded at Adairsville.

The candidate will invade Polk County today, speaking at Rockmart at 11 a. m. and Cedartown at 3 p. m. WSB will carry a statewide broadcast of the 3 p. m. speech.

A DIKE AT WINNIPEG—The Fort Garry section of Winnipeg was being threatened yesterday by a flanking movement of the Red River. This picture shows the McGillivray Dike which is being strengthened to prevent the water from overrunning another residential district. The wind which is rippling the water is putting too much pressure on the dike and it is planned to blast out a section of the railroad track to allow the water to return to the Red River and relieve the pressure.

Fear Dikes May Break At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man.—(UP)—Flood waters receded slightly in Winnipeg yesterday, but Army officers feared dikes protecting 2,000 homes might crack wide open under the impact of rain, wind and more than 30 feet of muddy Red River.

Fifty thousand civilians and 5,000 servicemen were conducting a holding operation along most of the 20 miles of sandbag dikes thrown up around the low areas. Six miles of the dikes were in "serious condition" and it was impossible to tell how long they would hold, Army flood control headquarters said.

More than 10,000 homes were under water in Winnipeg. City officials could not estimate the total amount of damage, but said it would cost $5,000 each to re-write, re-plant and repair many homes. The Agriculture Department said crop damage in the 650-square-mile flooded area between here and the U. S. border, 70 miles away, would amount to about $20,000,000. This did not include loss of equipment and damage to farm homes.

The waters receded half an inch from the record of 30.3 feet, but flood control officials made no downward trend would continue.

Settle Strike, Huie Told

John Goodwin, candidate for Labor Commissioner, last night called upon State Labor Commissioner Ben Huie to solve Atlanta's trolley strike and "quit wasting his time taking his pictures on telephone poles over Georgia."

Goodwin said he did not recall Huie taking an action to relieve the situation during the transit strike of 1949. He said he presumed Huie "doesn't have sufficient time to represent all the people after he devotes so much time to his private real estate and insurance business and representing the employers."

Avery Will Ask Thompson to Quit

Pat Avery, Georgia gubernatorial candidate, says he will ask fellow candidate M. E. Thompson to retire from the race, "and give the reasons why he should," in a speech today at Lawrenceville.

Three speeches are scheduled for today. Avery said, the first at Dawsonville at 11 a. m., the second at Cumming at 2 p. m., and the Lawrenceville address at 4 p. m. Issues not yet brought out in the race will be presented in each of the speeches, he said.

Reregistration Law Effective in Richmond

AUGUSTA—(P)—Georgia's reregistration law, contested in court by a Richmond County Board member, will go into effect here immediately.

Three members of the County Commission yesterday voted to pay salaries of Registrars and meet expenses of office requirement to carry out voter reregistration here.

The board acted on a recommendation of the Richmond County Grand Jury which Thursday began an investigation of the refusal of the commission to provide funds for the office.

Some 2,000 voters who registered under the new law will be affected. County officials said others who registered before the general election in 1948 will be eligible to vote in the June 28 primary.

1,000 Hear Talmadge, Show Hands

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Staff Writer

GREENSBORO—A crowd of more than 1,000 persons stood in a drizzling rain here yesterday to hear Gov. Talmadge, and nearly all of them held up their hands at the conclusion of his speech when he asked how many would vote for his reelection.

The hand-raising followed applause as the Governor pledged to defend the County Unit System of voting and to complete progress begun under his administration, if he is returned to office.

This afternoon Talmadge moves into Thomaston for his fourth speech of the campaign, after appearing on an Armed Forces Day program in Albany this morning.

The Governor's rally here was delayed and temporarily driven inside the Greene County Courthouse by a hard shower. The rain descended just as he was introduced by Joseph G. Faust, County Attorney, and shucked his coat to start speaking.

A crowd of about 1,500 ducked for cover, but the program was resumed outside when the rain slackened and most of them remained for the speech.

The Governor bore down heavily on threats to the County Unit System and attacks in Washington against the South's segregation laws, and told his listeners he is the only candidate in the Governor's race who can be counted on to vigorously fight those attacks.

Talmadge said "the big newspapers are showering down on the

Large Cross Is Burned on Lawn Of C. O. (Fat) Baker at Athens

ATHENS—(P)—A large cross was burned on the lawn in front of the home of Rep. C. O. (Fat) Baker here shortly after midnight yesterday.

City firemen were called to extinguish the blaze but no one was seen near the cross. Baker, on a campaign tour in the gubernatorial race, was not at home.

Chief of Police Clarence Roberts said his department is investigating the matter, but knows of no Klan activities in this area. Police think the cross could possibly have been set fire by students but no motive could be established.

County Unit System and are backed by the bloc vote and the FEPC crowd," and declared this was not time for "a panty-waist, namby-pamby man in the Governor's chair."

Declaring that the County Unit System protects small counties from big city political machines and guarantees rural counties a voice in State government, he warned that "if the County Unit System is ever abolished, County consolidation would follow as sure as day follows the night."

"Such consolidation would cause the abandonment of many courthouses and then county government would be centered in one single dominant city in various sections of the State," he declared.

"Many of our fine little county seat towns that are flourishing today would wither and die on the vine," he said.

Talmadge reviewed the progress his administration has made in education, health, welfare and highways, pointing particularly to the State's expanded hospital program. He cited the Minnie G. Boswell Memorial Hospital here as an example of the hospital program.

The Governor again promised to finance the Minimum Foundation Program by working with the Legislature to enact a sound tax program. And again he indicated

ABOUT THE TRANSIT STRIKE

How Long Can Wages Go Up When Cost of Living Is Down?

Regular, full-time trolley and bus operators in Atlanta are earning more money per month than the majority of their passengers. Yet their Union is demanding a hike in the pay rate at a time when the cost of living is lower than last year.

Look at the chart below, showing the percentage of increase in regular operators' pay rate as compared with the cost of living.

Note how consistently the increase in operators' pay rates has kept ahead of the cost of living. Note, too, that the difference between them has become much wider since the middle of 1947. And now, though the pay rate is at an all-time high, the cost of living is definitely down.

The operators' rate of pay is far greater today in relation to the cost of living than it has been at any time since 1939. Another wage increase cannot be justified on cost-of-living grounds.

Ability to Pay Also Counts

The Union's last and lowest demands made before the strike would increase the operating expense of the Atlanta transit system by about $450,000 a year. The system operated at a loss in 1947, 1948 and the greater portion of 1949. It earned only $2,160 in 1949 and is still not earning a fair return.

The high quality of service which we have undertaken to provide for Atlanta's transit riders cannot be continued if labor costs are to be increased every year regardless of ability to pay. Higher fares, reduced service and fewer jobs for operators would certainly result.

The transit operators are already well paid and there is no justification for further wage increases which will work hardship on the patrons of the service—especially at a time when the cost of living is down.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY

$315 A Month Is Good Pay

Regular, full-time trolley and bus operators earn an average of $315 a month, according to an analysis of recent payrolls. That is good pay, especially at a time when the cost of living is down.

In addition, the transit employees have a liberal pension plan whose entire cost is borne by the company. More than $1,000,000 has been paid into the pension fund for the benefit of the employees represented by the Union.

OPERATORS WAGE INCREASES MORE THAN INCREASES IN COST OF LIVING

The solid line above, showing the cost of living, is based on actual figures for the Atlanta area of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor.

Miss Julia Earnest Wed To Mr. Greeson in Dalton

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Earnest, of Chatsworth, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Julia Aloe Earnest, to Ray Francis Greeson, of Atlanta and Chatsworth, which took place yesterday at the First Methodist Church in Dalton.

The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. H. B. Free, of Carnesville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace and tulle. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was attached with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid.

Mrs. Jack Brooker, of Dalton, was matron of honor. She wore yellow organdy and carried a nosegay of Spring flowers. The candles were lighted by Douglas Terry and Tom Greeson, of Chatsworth.

Gerald Leonard served as best man. The ushers were Julian Westfield, of Chatsworth, and Donald Singletary, of Atlanta.

The bride attended Shorter College, where she was a member of the League of Women Voters and the Polymnia Society. She received her degree in Music from Georgia State College for Women, and was a member of the Allegro Club, Jesters and Madrigal Singers.

Mr. Greeson is the son of Mrs. C. D. Gray, of Chatsworth, and the late Max Greeson. He attended North Georgia Junior College and received his Bachelor's degree from the University of Georgia.

lor of Science in Distributive Education at the University of Georgia. He was a member of the Distributive Education Majors Club and of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Mr. Greeson is Co-ordinator of Distributive Education at Hoke Smith High School in Atlanta.

The couple will reside at 537 Barnett Street, N. E.

MISS MARY ANNE CANDEE

N. Y. Belle Betrothed to Jack Elrod, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Candee, Jr., of Floral Park, Long Island, New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Anne Candee, to Jack H. Elrod, Jr., son of J. H. Elrod, Sr., of Gainesville, and the late Mrs. Elrod. The wedding will take place Aug. 26.

Miss Candee was graduated from Brenau College, where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and served as President her senior year. At present, Miss Candee is a representative of the New York Telephone Company.

Mr. Elrod attended Advertising Art School, Nashville, Tenn., and received his B. A. degree from High Museum of Art, Atlanta. During the war, he served four years with the Navy. He is associated with Ed Dodd, creator of the comic strip "Mark Trail."

Grand Council Fire For Camp Fire Girls

Mrs. H. C. Goolsby, a Camp Fire leader, and six girls she has led from the day they "flew up" into Camp Fire as Blue Birds to the highest rank of all, Torch Bearers in Social Leadership, will be honored this evening at the annual Grand Council Fire of the Atlanta Council of Camp Fire Girls. The ceremony will be held at 8 p. m. in the North Fulton Park Amphitheater. In case of rain, it will be held in the Grady High School Gym.

The Grand Council Fire will include more than 2,000 Camp Fire Girl members who will receive recognition and awards for the work they have done and the ranks they have passed during the past year.

It will also acquaint the public with the aims and ideals of the Camp Fire program, in which the three age groups, the Blue Birds, age 7 to 16, the Camp Fire Girls, the Intermediates, and the Horizon Club Girls, the teen-age group, each has its own individual program and ranks.

The theme of this year's Grand Council Fire will be the Camp Fire Story, presented in pageant form. Mrs. J. B. Mack, a charter member of the first group of Camp Fire Girls organized in the city of Atlanta back in the early teens, will be the pianist for the occasion. Mrs. Alan Pattison, Executive Director of Atlanta Council, will act as narrator, and Mrs. Alva Gregg will lead the music.

The pageant will open with a dramatic flag ceremonial in which the flags of every nation Camp Fire has reached will be displayed.

The first tableau will show the beginning of Camp Fire history by presenting a group of Bloomer Girls surrounding Dr. and Mrs. Luther Gulick, who founded the Camp Fire program 40 years ago in their Summer camp for girls in Maine.

As the pageant unfolds, the growth of Camp Fire will be shown as more and more groups spring up in different parts of the country and include the first foreign members.

Each season of the year has its special significance to the Camp Fire Girls and the work they do. Early in the Fall, the membership drive begins. The girls, remembering their slogan "Give Service" begin work on their service projects. A tableau will show some of these services—the garments made by the girls for the Needlework Guild, the gifts and favors made for the children in hospitals, the dolls dressed and given to the Salvation Army and service in the National Birthday Project.

Spring brings an active interest in Business Craft as every loyal Camp Fire Girl participates in the annual Donut Drive, the proceeds of which support Camp Toccoa, provide funds for training and extension and also provide campships for worthy girls.

The culmination of the Donut Drive is the election of a Donut Queen. This year she is Kitty Kelly. In a gay coronation ceremony, the Crown Princess, Claudia Garvin, will place a crown upon the Donut Queen's head, while other members of her group will serve as the Royal Court.

To amuse the Queen and her Royal Court, as well as the audience, a colorful Gypsy band will sing and dance.

The Trail Seekers the Wood Gatherers the Fire Makers, and the Torch Bearers will be recognized.

The great day in the life of a Blue Bird is the day she "flies up" into Camp Fire. This year, at Grand Council Fire, 500 little Blue Birds will don the red tie bearing the Crossed Logs and Flame as she takes her first step along the Camp Fire Trail.

MRS. DONALD SIMS

Couple Wed By Mayor At Rossville

Miss Billie Von Schaaf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Von Schaaf, became the bride of Donald Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Millians, recently at the home of Mayor Herman Bowman, of Rossville, who officiated.

Mrs. Eugene Bowman, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor.

The bride wore a navy blue suit with navy blue accessories, a navy hat with a navy veil. She wore a purple orchid.

Charles Summers was best man.

The couple is residing at 1285 West Peachtree St.

The bride is a graduate of Girls' High School. The groom graduated from Boys' High School. He served two years in the U. S. Navy, and attended television school in Kansas City, Mo. He is now employed by East Point Motor Company.

White and Green Motif Marks Holder-Heazel Rites

The bridal motif of white and green was carried out to the letter in the marriage of Miss Ernestine Gladney Holder to Francis James Heazel, Jr., which was beautifully solemnized at a late-afternoon ceremony yesterday at the Co-Cathedral of Christ the King, with Monseigneur Joseph Cassidy officiating.

Not only were the decorations developed entirely in white flowers, but the bride's attendants wore filmy white marquisette dresses and wide-brimmed hats of white horsehair trimmed in foliage green ribbons. They carried bouquets of white peonies tied with green ribbons.

The attendants included Miss Katharine Runnels as maid of honor, Mrs. James Warwick, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. Patrick Clark, of Asheville, N. C.; Miss Barbara Lynn, of High Point, N. C.; Mrs. John Heazel, III, of Augusta, and Mrs. George Harris, of Atlanta, as bridesmaids.

The bride, who is the lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milton Holder, was given in marriage by her father. She chose a wedding gown of white Chantilly lace designed with a yoke of illusion. Her three-tiered veil of illusion cascaded from a becoming cap of lace, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Commander John J. Vogel, of Washington, D. C., was best man for Mr. Heazel, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Heazel, of Asheville, N. C.

Serving as ushers-groomsman were James F. Warwick, of Charlotte, N. C.; Whitfield Cove, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Frank Connolly, of New York City; William Mitchell, of Whiteville, N. C.; Walter Powell, of North Wilkesboro, N. C.; Raymond Doran, of Madison, Wis.; and the bride's brother, Robert M. Holder, Jr., of Atlanta.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Holder entertained at an elaborate reception at the Capital City Country Club. Mr. Heazel and his bride left for a honeymoon at Virginia Beach. They will reside in Arlington, Virginia.

Mr. Heazel is an attorney with the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C.

Miss Bond Dons Friend's Gown For Wedding

Wearing the Chantilly lace wedding gown of her close friend, Mrs. John McClelland, Miss Elizabeth Gholston Bond, of Decatur, was married to Henry Street Kornegay, of College Park, at the Decatur Presbyterian Church last evening, with the pastor, Dr. S. Hugh Bradley, officiating.

The bride's illusion veil, adorned from a cap of Chantilly lace and pearls, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and white orchids, showered with stephanotis. She was given in marriage by Fred Heaton.

The bride's attendants, wearing Nile-green marquisette and carrying red roses, were Mrs. C. B. Rosser as matron of honor, Misses Margaret and Eva Belle Kornegay, the groom's sisters; Miss Christine Jones and Mrs. W. H. Bradshaw, as bridesmaids.

Serving as usher-groomsman were Lonnie Sweet, C. B. Rosser, Bill Schell and J. W. Bullock.

W. H. Bradshaw was best man. Following the ceremony, the bride's mother, Mrs. Genevieve Bond, entertained at a reception at the Anna Young Alumnae House on South Candler Street.

Mr. Kornegay and his bride left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside in College Park.

YOUR STARS TODAY

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY

General Tendencies— This looks like a fine day for everything except the social dates which are usually slated for Saturday evening. Most people will not reach the mid-night hour without some cross purposes spoiling the appearance of the evening's parties. Earlier in the day the best conditions should be found in connection with travel, salesmanship, real estates and any contacts with older people or old friends. Sudden changes will not include your former circumstances at this time.

If It's Your Birthday— It looks as if money matters might become very important to you before the year is over and maybe before the end of Summer. The sign Taurus is always closely connected with finances and feels great responsibility about such things. This condition refers to home life or family matters; it may last for a year, so do not become impatient. Don't try to hurry romances or changes.

A LOT OF 'EYE WATCH'—A watch that looks like an eye? Salvador Dali designed the one above with the watch as a blue eye, rimmed with eyelids of brilliant-cut and baguette diamonds, shedding a diamond pendant tear drop. Dali insists, however, that the latter is a tear of happiness. The hat, about the size of two cartwheels laid rim to rim, was designed by Mr. John, with the tight face veil tacked inside the crown.

Asia and Africa May Yet Balance World Trade

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

The Marshall Plan, which has had astounding acceptance in a country that 30 years ago turned its back on the World Court on the thesis that it had no interest in the affairs of Europe, may have actually been oversold to Americans. Dr. Catherine Sims, Agnes Scott professor, said this week.

"It will be a disillusioning experience when we discover that the ECA which has worked virtual miracles in recovery, has been no panacea against Communism or the dollar shortage, and that it will be necessary to continue aid to Europe far beyond 1952."

Dr. Sims spoke to the Atlanta Chapter, American Society of Women Accountants at their sixth annual Public Relations Dinner on "The Marshall Plan."

Her only hint of a future came when she remarked that the much discussed Fourth Point in President Truman's Inaugural, the investment of American finance and technology in the under-developed areas of the world might mean that eventually Asiatic and African rehabilitation would "redress the balance of the Western World."

"With Europe's production facilities devastated, with our special protective tariffs and import quotas on goods Europe might export to us, with our advantage in production techniques and our farm program... Europe may never again recover its vitality as a power in world trade."

Dr. Sims discussed ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman's "magic word," integration, in which he proposes a demolition of economic barriers in 19 European countries, the abandonment of tariff and currency walls and the resultant provision of a mass market of 250 billion people as not being at all parallel with the establishment of free trade in the 48 States of America.

"Our political unity came before our mass market," she said, "Europe is struggling with political disunity and even trade integration cannot wipe it out as a miracle."

Elsie Lyon was elected President of the Women Accountants, with Elizabeth Meredith, Vice President. Martha Hyde is the new Secretary and Katherine Lindsey, Treasurer. Nora Caldwell, Marie White, Frances Forrester and Margaret Campbell are directors.

Calories Mix With Politics

If you are having trouble keeping even with the calories... well, you are not alone. Calories are non-partisan, so regardless of your politics you'll be interested to know that the President of the United States has to count them, too. He told me so...

The occasion was the annual dinner and stunt given by the Women's National Press Club in Washington, D. C. to honor this year's women of achievement: Olivia de Havilland, theater; Dorothy Fodick, government; Martha Graham, the dancer; Pearl Wamaker, education; Mildred Rebstock, science; Claire McCardell, fashion.

At a reception before the dinner, I was startled to look up and suddenly see President Truman in person. When he gave me his famous smile, I thought this is my chance. He was a little surprised when I inquired eagerly how he's doing on his diet, but he came right through and announced—proud as any redeemer—that the situation is under control, he has lost 11 pounds with only four more to go. Congratulations, Mr. President!

It appears calories are no is-ident. Mr. Barkley implied with an expansive gesture that he doesn't give a hoot about them... but he's mighty proud of his wife's figure.

Mrs. Barkley immediately put your dietitian on the spot to figure out a plan by which extra pounds can be avoided in the nation's capital. That's a tall order in this enterprising town, particularly for the popular Mrs. Barkley. But I'll work on it. For I don't want to let the Second Lady of our land down, especially since she told me she has been keeping in trim with this column for 20 years. Well, I started just about that long ago in her home town of St. Louis. It seems but yesterday!

I don't usually wear my dietitian's cap to a formal party, but I'm never one to turn a deaf ear to diet news. Even Eric Johnston, the movie czar, brought up the subject of diet. He's in favor of the feminine stars keeping at healthy normal weight, instead of this enough to haunt a studio. Who knows... future contracts may contain a minimum weight, as well as a maximum weight, clause. It's a healthy sign.

Well... tomorrow it won't be so hard for us to get back to routine dieting... knowing that the President, the First Lady and the Second Lady all count calories, too.

Mrs. Barge Named Head Of Young Matrons' Circle

Election of Mrs. Alvin Barge, Jr., as President of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School and the announcement of Mrs. James B. Hickey's gift of a pair of Georgian silver candelabra to the circle as a prize gift were the highlights of the annual Spring meeting held yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Other officers elected were: First Vice President, Mrs. E. H. O'Beirne, Jr.; Second Vice President, Mrs. Robert Miles; Third Vice President, Mrs. Sanford Pottinger; Recording Secretary, Mrs. William Merritt; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Floyd Hurt; Treasurer, Mrs. Arch Avery.

New Board members are Mrs. Charles Barker, Mrs. Walter Beaumont, Mrs. Fred Bull, Mrs. A. G. Cleveland, Jr., Mrs. Walter Colquitt, Mrs. Pope Fuller, Mrs. Ewing Miles, Mrs. Lindsay Neely, Mrs. Ambrose Pendergrast, Mrs. Al Roach, Mrs. Bucher Scott and Mrs. George West, Jr.

The new President, Mrs. Barge, succeeds Mrs. Richard de Gollan who has served the Circle in a capable manner. The former Miss Betty Fleetwood, of Cartersville, Mrs. Barge is numbered among the most popular and attractive young matrons in the city. She has served the Circle in various posts, having been on the board, a second vice president and a committee worker.

She attended the University of Georgia where she was a member of the Tri Delta sorority and since her marriage and her subsequent move to Atlanta she has become a member of the Atlanta Junior League and the Rose Garden Club.

Mrs. de Gollan, retiring President, announced that a donation of $1,500 was made by Jackson Moore to be used as a scholarship fund.

Mrs. Pope Fuller, equipment chairman, reported that in the past year the Amateur Movie Makers of Atlanta, headed by Bob Stanley, had offered and are making movies of the children and their activities at the school. The money for the film was donated by a patron of the Tallulah Falls School. A sound track is to be made in connection with the film at a future date.

Mrs. de Gollan announced that a net profit of over $8,000 was made by the Circle on their successful project for the year, The Folies of 1949. This amount will be applied to the Foundation for the Passie Fenton Otley Library Fund.

Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, School President, presented a gift to Mrs. de Gollan in the name of the children of the school.

Mrs. J. Brittain Pendergrast, scholarship chairman, announced a scholarship to be made in the name of the outgoing President, to be known as the Frances Mercer de Gollan Scholarship.

Armed Forces Day Program Tonight

By RITA VAN PELT

Armed Forces Day will be celebrated on WCON tonight at 7:30 by a special documentary-musical broadcast planned and staged by the Third Army Public Information Service in Atlanta.

The program, titled Songs of Victory, will feature a choral group from Emory University under the direction of Charles de Jarnette. Narration will be built around songs which became popular during World War II and recordings of the voice of President Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Bob Trout as they delivered their historical war announcements. Don Elliott and Dean Kaye will officiate as announcer and narrator.

Dennis Day's Life

WSB-TV's Dennis Day celebrates another eventful day by enticing a famous producer into a sightseeing bus which he is driving, after which he takes him on a tour of star's homes, giving him impersonation of each in the hope of landing a job. It all takes place during A Day in the Life of Dennis Day at 9:30 p. m.

Katinka Aired

Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air will star lyric soprano Nancy Carr in the title role of Rudolph Friml's gay operetta, "Katinka," tonight at 10. Costarring with Nancy will be Baritone Bruce Fouts. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

THE GEORGIA FARMER

Georgian Puts Up His Gun, Gets Out Old Rod and Reel

By STILES A. MARTIN
Constitution State News Editor

The hunting season in Georgia is over, so now let's go fishing. As Spring opens up and the weather gets warm, many Georgians are beginning to wonder "how are they biting" down in the lake or river.

Fishing in Georgia is older than the State itself. Fish was a principal food of the territory's first residents, the Indians, who also knew the value of fertilizer and put a dead fish in their corn (maize) "hills" to push the growth of that plant.

There are abundant streams in the State that afford excellent fishing grounds. These vary from the community creeks, that usually have large enough ponds in them to afford fishing; lakes and many ponds, formed mostly by grist (grain) mills; rivers, and then, last, but not least, the Atlantic Ocean with more than 100 miles frontage on Georgia.

This writer, while born and reared on a Crawford County farm, has spent much time fishing in nearby Uvaldehatchee creek, has never caught a fish that was six inches long. (A truthful fisherman!) Yet, Neighbor "Fed" Harris could catch a long string most any time from the same pond.

Fish were limited in those days mostly to three kinds, catfish, perch and minnows, with minnows prevailing.

Another popular fish, "mullet," were sold on Saturdays. The fish placed in half- or sawed-off barrels and covered with crocus sack material, were unloaded at the various railroad stations and then peddled out in the country. The barrels were loaded at Savannah and Brunswick the day or night before and rushed all over the State. Manufactured ice kept the fish cold, and incidentally, this was the first manufactured ice many countrymen had ever seen.

Mullet suppers were also popular in those days and the aroma of fish being cooked permeated the country—especially on Saturday nights.

With the passing largely of country grist mills, the ponds and lakes have been preserved as fishing spots. The farmer is also taking more interest in fishing and as you drive over the State today, hundreds of farm fish ponds are seen. The State Game and Fish Commission furnishes fish with which to stock these ponds. In addition, water is furnished the growing livestock industry in Georgia.

The Game and Fish Commission at the State Capitol, of which J. C. Calhoun, of Macon, is Director, points out that there is good fishing in every section of the State. In North Georgia there are Georgia Power Company lakes, the huge Lake Blue Ridge, Lake Winfield Scott, and soon to come into production will be Allatoona Lake and its many tributaries. Bass, trout and crappie prevail in North Georgia, in the lakes as well as in the many rivers in that area.

In Middle Georgia there is Jackson Lake, as well as many others, and scores of rivers and creeks that afford good fishing.

South Georgia waters have also furnished good fishing this year, the Commission reports. The Ogeechee River is famous for its abundance of shad caught there, while there is also good fishing in the Savannah, Oconee, the sprawling Altamaha, the fringe of rivers across the State, including the Satilla and Suwannee, and the huge Okefenokee Swamp, then across the State to the Flint and Chattahoochee Rivers to the West.

Many of the State parks contain "fishing" lakes, the largest of which is Lake Blackshear, 8,000 acres, near Cordele.

On the coast, the Atlantic Ocean provides ample deep-sea as well as "pier" fishing. In addition, "shrimping" has long been a leading industry in that area. Hundreds of boats "go out" daily and bring in large catches of shrimp, which are processed at plants along the coast.

Director Calhoun says that with the "closing of the sounds and the island waterways, the shrimping industry seems to have taken on new life." These waters are the breeding ground for young shrimp.

However, the sounds provide excellent salt-water fishing.

"Thousands of pounds of shrimp, crabs and oysters have been collected from Georgia waters and shipped to New York and other Eastern markets," Director Calhoun says.

Now a little about hunting.

The Game Commission reports a good season was experienced for marsh hen hunting on the coast, while inland, wild turkey hunting had the best season in some years, with quail hunting described as a "hit and miss" proposition last season.

The dove season was reported as "good." Duck hunting is a joy in some waters, and "there has never been a shortage of 'coons and possums, while rabbits were not too plentiful," the Commission reports.

The Game and Fish Commission is a constitutional body created by the Legislature with a member from each of the 10 Congressional Districts, with an additional member from the coastal area. The Director is employed by the Commission. The members are appointed by the Governor and are confirmed by the Senate and serve staggered terms.

With approximately 2,000,000 acres of land taken out of crop land in Georgia in the last 20 years, it has reverted to woodland, which has created "havens" for wildlife. It has also caused a big increase in the number of foxes which prey upon game, farm fowls and even cows and hogs. Mad foxes have created a serious menace in some sections, so much so that rewards are offered for their capture.

With plenty of water for fishing and fields and woods for game, Georgia is an attractive State for both the fisherman and the hunter.

So, as you put up your gun, take down your rod and reel and sally forth to the nearest fishing ground.

Farmers Get Warning On Weed Poisoning

ATHENS—As the garden begins to grow in warm weather, so will the weeds and weeds are highly sensitive to 2, 4-D. The weeds and weeds are highly sensitive to 2, 4-D. The weeds and weeds are highly sensitive to 2, 4-D.

Elmo Ragsdale, Extension Service horticulturist, warns, however, that home gardeners who have been rearing of the marvels of chemical weed killing that have been developed in the last few years had better wait another year or two before trying them.

Spraying with 2, 4-D to rid the lawn of dandelions, plantain and other broadleaf weeds is effective and a work-saver if done with care to avoid injury to vegetables and flowers, Ragsdale says, and chemical weeding is going to be helpful to many truck growers this year.

But chemical weed killers are most useful when the area to be treated runs into acres and labor expense is high.

Truck farmers will be applying results of research, and will be using different chemicals for different crops—onions, beets, carrots, and others. Their treatments will be applied to broad acres of a single crop. Even so, there is danger that a chemical used to kill weeds in one crop will drift in the wind and injure a nearby crop.

In the home garden, rows are close, Ragsdale continues, and several of the favorite garden crops—tomatoes and beans, for example—

NEW MACHINE HARVESTS GRASS AND CLOVER CROP FOR SILAGE

Atlantan's Grass Mower Seen As Great Aid To Dairymen

By RALPH MCGILL

Georgia, with other Southern States, is learning it can grow grass and has water in ample supply. It is moving toward an agricultural economy of grass, beef, dairying and poultry.

Feed is the big hurdle.

Frank Neely, Atlanta department store executive, has been a farmer since 1925 when he bought a farm near Chamblee.

The year before he bought it the last starving cotton farmer had abandoned the property when his total yield was about $300. The acres yielded about a quarter bale to the acre.

Neely, with patience and hard work, has made it into one of the finest dairy farms in the State.

He has done so without using any unusual or expensive equipment. His latest piece of machinery is, I think, the first in the State. It mows grass, chops it and blows it into a trailer. It is by no means a machine new to dairying. The Midwest has used it for years. That is why they can produce good milk cheap.

Here in Georgia our cows don't produce enough milk. Our pastures are not, save for a few, developed for all-year grazing. Even when they are there is always need for feed.

In the Spring we had plenty of grass. It grows faster than cattle can graze it. This machine enables a pasture to be mowed and the chopped, green grass or clover is then blown into a silo.

Within two weeks the mowed field is ready for grazing. Cattle can be moved from pasture to pasture and the machine will thus enable a dairy farmer to double the amount of feed he gets from his acres. He fills his silo off Spring grasses.

The machine costs about $1,500. It is within the means of any commercial dairy farmer.

The result is a sturdier, larger calf which can be bred about six months ahead of either of the crosses. The milk supply also is larger.

More feed and better milk producers are the answer to the future.

Franklin 4-H Youths Will Aid Fund Drive

Constitution State News Service

FRANKLIN—Four-H Club boys in Heard County today are getting ready to make a contribution to the Georgia 4-H Club Foundation, in spite of the fact that 1949 was a disastrous crop year in the county with money scarce on many farms.

The club boys have a 900-pound registered Hereford bull, for which they paid $500, and they are going to give away May 27. In connection with the drawing, through which some person will win the bull, the 4-H youths are asking for contributions to be given to the 4-H Foundation.

All funds donated to the Foundation will be used to build a permanent 4-H Club camp on the shores of Rock Eagle Lake, near Eatonton. A
